WANT TO RAISE $25,000 IN TOWN

Will Endeavor to Raise Substantial Sum in Gettysburg for Endowment Fund of the College. Point Out Advantage to Town.

To secure a substantial list of subscriptions to the $100,000 proposed $200,000 endowment fund of Gettysburg College a campaign has been started to secure a sum reaching $25,000 from local citizens. The following citizens have in charge the work:

Dr. Wm. A. Granville, Dr. H. W. McKnight, Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Rev. J. R. Baker, Charles A. Blocher, S. M. Buehler, Robert Bringhurst, C. S. Duncan, Amos Eckert, W. Lavere Harter, A. A. Holtzworth, Hon. Wm. A. Hunter, Dr. Walter H. O'Neal, Rev. L. Dow Ott, Rev. Franklin E. Taylor, Dr. C. Wm. Wolf, H. T. Weaver, C. S. Reaser, Hon. S. McC Swope, Dr. T. G. Hilbinger, Hon. H. Wm. Bream, Dr. J. A. Clutz, S. A. Crouse, Prof. C. H. Forney, Wm. Alleman, Hon. Clem. Hon D. P. McPherson, H. C. Picking, Rev. S. F. Snyder, Prof. C. H. Steen.

"Without counting the increase in the value of the land owned by the College, the total investment in the College in land buildings, equipment, and endowment amounts to over $600,000. the investments of the Lutheran Theological Seminary in buildings amount to about $200,000 Since this Seminary draws the College income for its students, it follows that the College is directly responsible for the investment in the Seminary of over $6 100,000 in these two educational plants. The investment however does are radically from the ordinary investments made by a town or by an individual, in that in the latter case the returns from the investment are paid to outsiders, while of the $6,000, 40) that is very small part of which has been donated by outsiders, the citizens of Gettysburg are collecting the major portion of the dividends.

"The above total of $6 000 000 does not include the value of the towns in which the students live or employes and of the College live who are not housed in College buildings, nor does it include the value of the business buildings and homes in Gettysburg amounting to hundreds of those units of dollars more which are occupy y those of the individuals depend on the business brought to Gettysburg by these two institutions.

"At 5 per cent the returns to the citizens of Gettysburg from the investment of $1,100,000 in $55 000 per annum, and this estimate does not take into account the value of the indirect investments which would amount to tens of thousands of dollars more.

"Over $100,000 is spent annually in Gettysburg by the students of the two institutions. Higher education, as represented by these two institutions of learning is the greatest industry in Gettysburg. The annual financial returns from this source to the citizens of Gettysburg are absolutely certain and are, to a certain extent, independent of hard times. There is not a business or a profession, a mechanic, or working man in Get tysburg, who would not directly feel the lack or the healthy financial blood which comes to them from the numerous channels of Gettysburg because of the presence here of these two institutions; and there are hundreds of families, who, if the institutions should close, would lose their present source of livelihood and be obliged to leave Gettysburg. All this financial wear when we think of the merchants here whose main dependence is the patronage of the students and instructors and other employees of these institutions, those who have retail business of clothing, and the large number of writers who annually draw to Gettysburg because of the location here of the College and the Seminary. There is not a man, woman, or child in Gettysburg who should not be deeply concerned about the welfare of our College, for all are connected with it either directly or indirectly.

"That such a large number of Gettysburg men and women have attained to eminence is largely due to the fact that, because of the presence here of the College, they were able to secure a first class college education with otherwise would have been beyond their financial reach. That parents living in Gettysburg can give their children a high grade college education at a very low cost is to be set to the town of great value educationally, socially, and financially. The generosity of the citizens to the college now operates to reduce the cost of tuition materially in each case that "The financial returns, large as they are, in fact, are from another standpoint, far less than the resulting advantages of association, culture, refinement, higher moral tone, and general enlightenment, accruing to the citizens of Gettysburg because of the location here of the College This accounts very largely for the reputation Gettysburg now enjoys as a cultured community more than average refinement and nutture and makes it highly desirable as a residential town The various college lectures, as well as the many musical entertainments, are open to the general public free or at a trifling cost.

Of the $200,000 endowment, and $40,000 are already have been pledged. The balance must be raised before July 1st. Subscriptions may be available the $40,000 Rockefeller gift.

COLLEGE TO STAY

The trustees of Blue Ridge College have officially announced that it has decided to keep the institution under the Union Bridge, provided conditions become more tolerable in relation to attendance. All classes have been conducted near the college, and there is no reason why it will not be attended by students.

A bill providing for an annual appropriation on the part of the state of Maryland to Blue Ridge College is the amount of $1,000 to thirteen state scholarships passed the house and senate at the present session and will be signed by the governor. The bill was introduced by Senator Owen.

The first serious accident which has taken place in the course of operations at the new federal building erected here on Saturday afternoon about 2.15 when William Hemler was caught by a cave in of ground and sustained a broken leg the bone being fractured immediately above the ankle.

Mr. Hemler was working in a trench at the west side of the Baltimore street when the accident happened. The dirt there had been used for filling in and was composed principally of clay with some ground, which, coupled with the effects of frost and thaw, made it unstable. As Mr. Hemler was working with a pick at this accomplishment, suddenly a large portion gave way and he was caught in the landslide

As he tried to get out of its way his left leg was caught by the heavy clay and the bone fractured. At once a sentinel of dirt rolled in upon him, it is upon about 4 feet long, 2 ft 1 foot high and eighteen inches in thickness falling in the landslide.

Mr Hemler was taken to his home on West High street and the fracture was reduced. He is now resting as comfortably as can be expected. A LONE STAR DIANA Dauntless Girl Hunter of the Texas Border.

Houston, Tex.—One of the most daring and dauntless big game hunters in the upper Rio Grande border region of Texas is Miss Katie Sharp, of Mount Alto, Kinney county. She goes with rifle and revolver and in the saddle of any country she chooses. She has gone on many hunting expeditions in the mountains and wilderness of Mexico where bears, deer and other game abound. She has been in her home many trophies of the chase, some these being the skins of several large bears she killed in Mexico.

On a bear hunting trip into Mexico last winter, she had a narrow escape from being badly injured, or possibly killed. She had killed one bear and was aware of the other's presence. The second bear, a huge fellow, rushed at her and threw her to the ground. The first shot went wild, but the second struck the animal in the heart and within almost reaching distance of Miss Sharp's head. The bear fell dead as she put an end to the struggle of the beast.

The intrepid huntress knows no such thing as fear. Its frequently goes out alone into remote localities of the border region and kills bear and game birds. She knows all of the border trailing through the hills and rough country and also along the Rio Grande and is also familiar with every mountain pass and trail in the mountains. Frequently on her hunting excursions she has tried the nerve and endurance of seasoned and long experienced guides, but she is so well known all through that region and is popular among the native people as well as those of the town. She is given the sobriquet of the Diana of the Border.

Laugh Earned Reward.
"I can't for the life of me see what a brilliant fellow like Skittle saw to admire in that woman he married."
"It wasn't what he saw so much as what he heard."
"What do you mean?"
"I guess he must have heard that mother-in-law laugh of hers."
"Do you mean to say that a brute man would marry a woman just be cause she could laugh?"
"Well—yes. Didn't you hear that Skittle married the girl who tittered?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SPOILED A GOOD SCHEME.

If Pete Had Only Had His Own Way It Might Have Won.

Great Central Pete was a noted bunko steerer of the old days, but his good nature real our cents. Only to fell upon hard times, and he and a younger but equally lawless confederate plan unbrotken to beat their way on a freight train to Washington. A freshman kicked them off at Trenton.

It was getting late, and neither of them had had a bite to eat since morning. From where they had landed was a long walk to the city, and the cold air drove an earnest effort. Great Central Pete had an idea. He went into the express office, borrowed one of the blank envelopes such as are used for transmitting currency, and, with a stolen stub pencil, on newspaper cut to the size of the envelope scrawled it carefully.

"Now, then," he said to his partner, "you take your fountain pen and write the address. Put on a registered stamp. Then we'll go over to that hotel and you'll see how easy it is to get square, and I'll hand this envelope to the clerk and tell him to put it in the safe. He'll look at the figures on the back and think it's a lot of money, guys and give us rooms and grub until we get ready to make."

The scheme sounded good to this partner, and in a few minutes they had obeyed orders. Great Central Pete had the envelope with the figures and the address in his hands.

"Two dollars and $0.00?" he demanded.

"Yep," said his partner.

"Well, it don't look big enough to me," said Pete, "but I guess there's some more of them mangles."

The proprietor was interviewed, but Pete would have his way and kept right on to the hotel. There they were tacked on three more mangles, making the price even more formidable.

Then Pete marched grandly over to the clerk, who was engaged in waiting his friend, passed the stuffed envelope across the desk to the clerk and called for the bridal suit.

The clerk looked at the envelope twice, another look at the soiled faces and shabby apparel of the newcomers and then called for the head bellhounder. A minute later the discomfited pair were on the outside of the walk.

"There, now!" he shouted. "I told you that dodge was a mighty sight too meaghty." — Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

All the Particulars.

A bleak cop report was sent out by a Chicago reporter. He had been sent to fill out, and one of them came back with this report: "Found a dead man, blank side in pencil. "All we've got in this neighborhood is four saloons, two schoolrooms, a patch of wheat, three Africans, a Chinaman, forty-seven acres of tatters and a darn fool who sent me out here on a blank assignment." She owns eighty sheep and a mule, and when he sees me, and no more at present."

Not a Samaritan.

Booth Tarkington, the American playwright and novelist, is a very early riser. He has written several plays and novelist Arnold Bennett visiting him in New York not long ago found that Tarkington had already breakfasted and was at his desk.

"I believe in the simple life, I am sure," he said. "Will you have a cup of cafe noir with me at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning?"

"Thank you, Mr. Tarkington," the novelist answered, worried, "but I don't walk in my sleep."

A Robert Saha.

Sir John Gilbert Robinson in his "Fifty Years of Royalty" tells how he was assuming his liberal during the visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States in England at the close of 1860. "I dined at Niagara Falls," he writes, "and had an audience of her majesty Queen Victoria. They were very attentively received. One of their members was a Mr. Robert Saha, who had formerly been pitmaster to pittmaster. Wyoming.

O great mother," he said, 'so bring it to pass that I may be Saha, Saha, Saha,' he knees; fold him to thy breast.' Here the queen, half frightened, exclaimed, 'But where is the child? I don't see him. Where is he?' 'Here, O mother,' said the Saxon gawsky, at the same time producing a pocket knife. My mind about six feet high and weighing well over 200 pounds. 'He is here.'"

COMMON SENSE IN DIRT ROAD MAINTENANCE.

LEATHER ROADS.

Experiments in Hazelwood, England, Show Excellent Results.

Experiments in road material appear to be trying almost every known substance, from the hair of animals to stones from the meteoric, the steel and glass, to the materials like corn and rubber.

In Hazelwood, England, a road has been in existence for a year which was constructed of tar and leather and is said to have worn very well. The leather used was obtained in the form of shoe and slipper cuttings from leather manufacturers. Discarded pieces of leather were chopped and cut into small pieces and added to bitumen, making a material of a very elastic consistency. After making this into a road surface it was found to spread upon the ground and stone of the roadway, and to form a hard, yet elastic and tenacious, covering. The road is well known all through that region and is popular among the native people as well as those of the town. She is given the sobriquet of the Diana of the Border.

MANY ASK TO SEE MURDERER HANG

Over a thousand persons have made written or verbal request of Sheriff Walter for admission to the Franklin County jail yard on Tuesday, April 30, that they may see the hanging of William Reed who slew Sarah Mellon at Mont Alto.

Of course it would be impossible as well as contrary to the spirit of the law to admit any but a small number of these requests and the sheriff accordingly has fixed upon that great event, as at least as more than the law in this state should stand.

The statute provides that a jury of witnesses, twelve in number, shall represent the state and certify that the sentence of the court has been executed. Beyond the officers of the law, the spiritual advisers of the prisoner, the twelve witnesses and such jail attendants as are required properly to carry out the arrangements there is usually little or no room for other visitors. From this statement the thousand and more applications may be seen to have no room to complain of disappointment by the sheriff.

The sheriff is not required to read the death warrant to the doomed man and a deaf mute, a victim of the habit of the date fixed for his execution it is said that the sheriff will dispose of with this formality.

Carrying out his own dignified and proper neighborhood custom, he will assemble with the spirit of the law sheriff Walker will see that the execution is performed with becoming solemnity and decorum and that there is a certain public can suspect nothing.

The birds were spied first in a field about an eighth of a mile long. Then they were seen on the Long Level Brothers, reaching in their vicinity for a mile and a half, and in the river. PLANT THOUSANDS OF PEACH TREES

The planting of a large number of peach trees, enlarging old orchards and starting new ones is the order of the day along the South Mountain belt.

The Lookout Mountain Orchard company composed of Lancelot Jacques, Boas Hoffman and others, who are also experienced fruit growers of Smithsburg who are operating about two miles south of Smithsburg, on a continuation of the mountain soil on which Smithsburg is situated, have recently secured, are now busy setting out 80,000 peach trees. Among them they have 30 men at work with a number of teams. Jacques is personally looking after the work.

The company will have 45,000 peach trees of the Elberta variety and 35,000 of the other spring planting is completed. This is composed of men who have been successful with orchards of about 20 acres and they figure that the same proportion will be successful on a large scale will be proportionately successful. The company has a big sprinkling pit in on the Washington County branch of the Cumberland Valley by the railroad company, and they plan to have a loading place for the city marketers mile from the orchards.

Near Cleveland, Ohio, a large orchard in the peach belt. The universal method in this section is to set trees more feather than on the last mentioned orchard, and they don't seem to know why. Jacques says that the reason for the difference is that the old trees were badly hoped. They were set out in a furrow by one, set two feet apart and the furrow plowed back. The result is that the roots are left near the surface and are left leg are broken, the latter above the knee, and there are numerous bruises and contusions on the body.

The injured man has been working at the quarry but a week. In company with another he was at the foot of an incline, his duty to keep the small stone into the empty cars. He had just filled one and pushed it aside and started it up the incline. Suddenly a block of stone broke loose and the car came running rapidly to the bottom. The unconscious Gibble stepped on the track and was knocked down and run over. He was taken to the office of the company, where Dr. Hoffman, who gave the wounds first treatment, and had the man taken to the York hospital.

RUNK & PECKMAN'S REALTY REPORT

On April the First, we closed our first year's business in Adams County, with a record of 30 sales. We wish as many more at our Chambersburg office. All of the parties who bought through us, with but one exception, have settled and are before possession of their properties. During the coming year we will not only better both buyers and sellers even better service than in the season just ended, but we will endeavor to give more publicity to our properties. We have just now in preparation a booklet which we will advertise each week a number of properties you have through Hunk & Peckman. Many of these properties will be described without mentioning the owner's name, thus keeping the matter entirely confidential and anonymous. We serve the seller by bringing him a buyer without publicity and the buyer by finding for him the kind of seller he prefers; we use our experience and knowledge in sales and values, to get these together at a common ground where a deal can be made to the satisfaction of both. We cannot and will not be a party to any dishonest deal, the reputation of our firm is at stake in every transaction we undertake, and we will not be a party to any deal that will not stand the test and not be the principle of a "square deal" for all. Our time and experience are at your service.

FIRST SERVICES IN NEW CHURCH

St. James Has Largest Sunday School in Its History for Opening of New Church. Many New Members Added to Congregation.

With the largest Sunday School in the history of the congregation and the largest attendance at church service, St James Lutheran congregation on Sunday entered their new building on the corner of York and Stratter streets. Though only the bare portion of the edifice is ready for use it was a day of rejoicing and happiness to all those who were present and members and visitors alike were delighted with the new church.

An attendance of 289 was registered at the Sunday School service in the morning. The whole hall overflowed and the auditorium was filled to capacity when it is saying a great deal, for St James is noted for its large attendance at Sabbath School sessions. One of the most remarkable features of the service was the organization of a men's Bible class which started with a membership of one hundred. They are placed in the "pit" of the room, all the galleries and other parts of the building facing them and the class making a striking sight for the other members of the school. Rev. J. H. Baker will teach the class which is expected to grow to at least 150 forming the largest single class which has ever existed in Gettysburg.

At the morning church service there was further cause for rejoicing when no less than forty eight members were received into the church. More than half of these were confirmed and the remainder were received by renewal of letter. The Young Men's Brotherhood is that all the older members of the congregation, who desired to be present and were not able to walk, were gotten to church. Edgar Millin and Walter Rice volunteered with their automobiles and it was a day of great pleasure to those who have lived to see so many years of activity as members of St. James.

The evening Christian Endeavor service was interesting as usual, the church auditorium playing a part in the evening church service. The latter drew an attendance of eight hundred, practically filling the large new room. It was the Easter service of the Sunday School and enjoyable as usual.

The manner in which the new Sunday School auditorium accommodates the large crowd at Sunday's services was the source of much gratification. The three galleries and the other floor space were all utilized and no one was crowded. The lighting arrangement is all that could be desired and acoustics are excellent.

During this week the work on the building will be finished and by next Sunday it will be practically complete. During the week the work men ask be is allowed to work uninterrupted and people are requested not to enter the church at any time. There will be no services until next Sunday when Communion will be held morning and evening.

In all the attendance of town on Sunday Easter was observed in the customary manner in the Sunday Schools holding appropriate exercises. Easter floral decorations being in evidence and Easter sermons were preached. A number of new members were received into the churches and Easter Week and the season was one of rejoicing to all.

The Easter festival was celebrated in the Catholic church with all the grandeur and solemnity of the ancient ritual. The choirs were crowded at both services. Father Dougherty officiated and preached at 8 a. m., and the Rev. Edward A. Leahy, a Premium friar, preached at the 10 o'clock mass. Before this service there was a procession of priests and vested boys from the rectory to the church. At both the morning and evening services the choir rendered some of the most difficult and classical church music. More than six hundred persons received Holy Communion on Holy Week.

ELECTRIC LIGHT FOR HIGHFIELD

It seems probable that Highfield and immediate vicinity will soon be lighted with electricity as negotiations are under way to accomplish that end.

It is reported that Dr. Joseph Rench, a well known dentist, formerly of Baltimore, who owns a handsome cottage in the hill east of Highfield and who is also largely interested in the company that furnishes water to the residents in the vicinity of Blue Ridge Summit, is the prime factor in the movement.

Some of the business places at Blue Ridge Summit are being current furnished by the power company at the Maryland State sanatorium, and Dr. Rench is of the opinion that with the modern equipment he expects to install he will be able to extend his lines to that point. He will be in a position to furnish light to all who log it in that vicinity. Along the state road to Highfield and even to Cascade, Md.

TO START NEW MONUMENT SOON

Expect to Have New Virginia Memorial on Gettysburg Field Ready for Dedication Next Year. Statue of General Lee.

The state of Virginia expects to have the handsome memorial to her sons which stands on the edge of Cemetery ready for dedication in July 1918 and final details regarding the sum amount are now being determined prior to the commencement of work upon the erection.

A large equestrian statue of General Robert E. Lee will constitute a massive bronze and pedestal in front of which is to be a handsome group of figures, besides on west Confederate avenue overlooking the scene of Pickett's Charge will be the handsome group of figures adopted some time ago and granted by the authorities having in charge matters pertaining to the local park.

There has been some question about the inscription to the memorial but this was determined at Richmond on Monday by Governor Stuart, Colonel W. Gordon McCabe and Colonel Thomas Smith, members of the Virginia Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association. The inscription will be "Virginia" To her Sons at Gettysburg

Governor or not the monument will be dedicated at the time of the 1918 battle anniversary as has now been officially announced but it is hoped that some other date will be chosen as an early date would be chosen as would detract considerably from the ceremonies. The monument is to cost about $50 000.

TENER PLEADS FOR TREES

Governor Tener has issued his proclamation for the spring Arbor days which had been previously announced by Secretary of Agriculture Patterson as follows:

"In the forests were one of the greatest gifts to man. They surrounded him with beauty; they cradle his streams; they furnished him with shelter and food; they give him a material which was easily fashioned into the tools he needs. Every walk of man owes much to the forests. The prosperity of the forest are becoming scarce, so that today the best efforts of the brain and brawn of man are necessary to produce suitable substitutes, but with only partial success. It is the privilege for man to reforest the land; his must be the conservation of the forests by the hearty and wealth which were so liberally bestowed upon him. It is also fitting that he should be taught this duty to future generations.

"Therefore, I, John K. Tener, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby issue this my proclamation, designating Friday, April 13, and Friday, April 20, 1912, Arbor Days throughout the state, and do most respectfully urge that the State observe and celebrate the days by the planting of trees and by holding such exercises in connection therewith as may be fitting."

BOY BURNED BY GASOLINE

East Berlin Men Has Unusual Experience with Automobile which Results in Painful Injury to Young Man.

By the explosion of a gasoline tank on an auto-mobile, belonging to Mr. Hull, of East Berlin, Lester Spangler, the 11 year old son of Edward Spangler, residing on the Dr. Hamilton farm in West Manchester township, York County, was severely burned about the face and head Sunday.

Mr. Sell was running between East Berlin and York in an automobile when his machine got out of order and he came to a stop in front of the Spangler home. Luther Sentiver was attracted to the scene as a spectator.

He noticed a few feet away while the owner of the machine made the necessary adjustments to get it in working order. When the driver was ready to start he gave the crank a few turns and simultaneously with that the gasoline tank exploded. A sheet of flame enveloped young Spangler. His clothes were aloued by burns his hair was scorched and his face blistered.

Dr. Zech, of York New Salem, was summoned and dressed the burns. The victim was not badly burned as the flames escaped serious injury. The boy's eyes were also badly seamed.

BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Lying in the Chambersburg Hospital, blind and mutually wounded, is a victim of a premature dynamite explosion in Selestoire Ville, who is said to be the result of a practical joke attempt at murder by his mates, who took the fearfully burned man's life blood from him by a dynamite blast.

It seems but fair some time that Italian had been at odds with Pasha Paglia. The men were employed by the contractors, who are constructing the Chambersburg sewer system. The two men had been drinking and were followed by comrades, the anger of each grew more against each.

Saturday when the men went to work, Paglia said he would finish his fellow friend that day. As soon as prompted Paglia got his chance. A shout was to be rent all. He then went into to the ditch to wire the dynamite. As he was about to do so blood thirsty money pushed the lever and sent off the blast.

The man was picked up mortally wounded and taken to the hospital.

Meanwhile the alleged murderer made his escape.

THE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF DIRT ROADS

The Fundamentals Must Be Mastered First, Says Major Thomas.

The desirability of good roads needs by this day no extended advocacy, says Major H. Thomas in Good Roads Their desirability, if not their necessity, is generally unquestioned. The agitation of the subject during recent years has called forth many copious sources full and convincing expositions of the advantages of good roads to the citizen, to the state and to the nation.

I shall therefore proceed at once to my immediate subject, "Earth Roads—Construction and Maintenance."

In regard to good roads, as to most good things, there are obviously degrees of excellence.

It is to be hoped that the roads over which there is heavy travel to be the country of the future and the towns of the state will be macadam roads, gravelled or otherwise improved roads of distant future, it is evident that in the main the public roads of the state must of necessity be composed of earth for many years to come. Hence the necessity, it is fortunate that under favorable conditions, even earth roads may be made fairly good, the earth road is the most satisfactory for those conditions are rare.

The statement that an earth road is the best road that can be built and kept well drained and free from ruts, mudholes and dust, and that it requires a reasonably well adapted to the purpose of traffic entire to secure satisfactory surface imperatively necessary.

It is to be remembered that while the time comes to build a macadam or gravel road it will have to be built upon an earth bed, so that much of the work of earth construction will be utilized to the future when it becomes necessary and practicable to have a paved surface to the road. The condition of the common road to be im-

PROGRESS IN COAL CONFERENCE

Both Sides Confident Strike Won't Be Called.

CONCESSIONS WILL BE MADE

Recognition of the Union is the One Stub Upon Which the Conference May Split.

Philadelphia, April 12.—The controversy between the anthracite operators and miners was further clarified after a three and a half hour conference between the four representatives of each faction held in the Reading Terminal.

Immediately after the meeting the following bulletin was handed to the newspaper men:

"The special committee has been in session and has been discussing the various points of difference. All that can be reported in progress. No statements can be made until report is made to the full committees."

Later it was learned that the men only discussed the old contract in the general manner and that the conferences will be continued for several days.

Prior to the conference between the representatives of the operators and miners the miners held several meetings.

It is the general feeling among both miners and their employers that the strike will be called. At the conclusion of the meeting President John P. White, of the United Mine Workers, was particularly happy. He smiled to the newspaper men, but declined to make any statement, other than to say parting farewells progress.

President George F. Baer, spokesman of the operators, although he is not a member of the sub-committee considering the demands, was also in a happy frame of mind.

While Mr. Baer and his immediate associates were noncommittal, it is known to be their belief that no strike will be called. From unquestionable source it has been learned that the operators will be granted to make some concessions, although they will come slowly. It is further believed by some of the miners that a five per cent increase will be offered and that later the operators may go as high as ten per cent as the third day of increase.

With one great rock upon which the conferences are liable to split is the matter of recognition of the Union. The side of the operators are emphatic and on recognition will be granted, while the miners are just as insistent that no other agreement will be satisfactory to them.

"We are hoisting upon recognition of the miners' union," said President White.

"From the feeling of the miners in District No. 1 I do not feel that any contract failing to carry with it recognition of the union will be accepted," said Mr. Mack.

The conference has not the power to settle the controversy. The decision reached in the conference will be referred to the great convention of twenty, who will then submit it to the miners themselves for a referendum vote.

JOHN MITCHELL CONFIDENT

Believes the Coal Trouble Will Be Amicably Settled.

Philadelphia, April 12.—John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, is in this city.

Mr. Mitchell was asked to express his opinion on the coal situation, and he said that he believed the negotiations now going on among the miners representatives and the operators would end satisfactorily.

"I believe that within a short time the coal situation will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion," Mr. Mitchell said. "Although I cannot make a statement as to what the outcome will be conditions it will be settled."

SOFT COALMEN ACCEPT

Most Ninety Per Cent Approve Un ion's Referendum Ballot.

Indianapolis, ind., April 12.—Ninety per cent of the soft coal miners have Approved the proposed two-year wage contract," said Merlin Perry, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, after he had received telegrams from representative local unions throughout the country reporting results of the referendum ballot.

Though perhaps 25 per cent of the miners of Indiana and the southwest voted in the negative, because of certain local conditions, warrants Perry asserts, Illinois and other districts have given overwhelming majorities for the new agreement, Mr. Perry said.

The ballots are being returned to the miners' locations and the voters will begin counting them on Monday morning. The result probably will be announced officially on Monday night. The miners' leaders do not expect, with the wage question settled, district differences between and operators speedily will be bridged over and the situation adjustment will be back in the pits by May 1.

Said to Have Been Operated on For Cancer.

Recently removed to the Hotel Buckingham from St. Luke's hospital, where it is said he underwent an operation for a cancerous growth at the base of the tongue, he had a dangerous relapse.

"General Frederick Dent Grant died suddenly of heart failure without previous notice at the Buckingham hotel. After retiring apparently in better condition than for several weeks. He had returned from his recent trip much improved and looking remarkably well and vigorous. His medical condition since his return had been under special care of his physician, who had been with him during the attack and who had pronounced him in very good health.

"He passed himself as rejoiced at his restored strength. General Grant had been suffering from diabetes and of stomach digestive disorders which seemed under perfect control. This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise. His wife and nurse were with him at the time, and his family physicians. He was called at once, found that he beart had stopped instantly."

FIGHT DISRUPTS CONVENTION

Bay City, Mich., April 12.—Blows were struck and one man fainted in the terrible rush at the convention hall door.

Practically the whole of the session of the Republican state convention was an insight with wild noises in the air and a person in the hall could no more than guess what transpired with a view to ascertaining. The convention, after Taft and Roosevelt men rushed at each other with fist fiends and a furior all fight was only prevented by the presence of the military and police.

Out of this pandemonium was made national history. Two complete delegations to the national convention, one for Roosevelt, the other for Taft, were elected. Two conventions were in possession of the same hall, and both claimed that they were the legal ones. the proceedings it had stopped out.

Judging from the temporary organization, which convention is now in ed for by the chairman of the party organization, the Roosevelt convention has control of the room the regular and the Taft convention the room.

The state central committee, however, by the fact that while Bull Chairman Ennis and the secretary of the state central committee controlled from the Roosevelt side, a majority of that committee, numbering seventeen, were supporters of the Taft faction.

The big fight of the convention was in the Wayne delegation from Detroit. The Taft men had the sergeant at arms and the police privately. Every Roosevelt man from Wayne was forced out. Only Taft men were admitted.

PEAK SUDDENLY TURNS VOLCANO

Panama Villages Swept Away and Thousands Killed.

NEW ISLANDS APPEAR

Mobile, Ala., April 12.—Thousands of persons have been killed and whole Indian villages swept away by an eruption of Chiriqui Peak, near David and Toro, in Panama, according to the statement of Captain Chevis, of the United Fruit company's steamer Port Morgan, which has arrived here.

Captain Chevis says that the eruption occurred April 8, early in the morning, while the Port Morgan was hundred and miles out from Colon, and that he witnessed flames shooting from the peak.

Reports of the terror casually received here by the captain of the Port Morgan from del Toro by refugees who had escaped the catastrophe. He says he watched the eruption on April 1 until he put to sea.

Besides the loss of life, Capt. Chevis says, he saw evidences of the disturbance over land. The sea was affected in many places and the air was filled with smoke and dust far out into the gulf.

Captain Chevis says the inhabitants of Boca del Toro were panic-stricken, believing the island was sinking. But with the love that was beloking for it from the mainland.

Chiriqui Peak, as far is is known, has not been shown volcanic action in the sudden bursting of fire and lava from the crest took the natives by surprise.

In describing the eruption, Captain Chevis said:

"The Port Morgan was berthed in the Almirante wharf, about fourteen miles from Bocas del Toro, on the morning of April 8, loading bananas, when I noticed a column of heavy black smoke first and a great rumbling like thunder. Looking in that direction I saw great volumes of fire ascending from the peak.

"The natives, who had been loading the ship, and slept, were terror-struck. Some of the men fell on their knn as in prayer. All work was suspended for several hours as the people watched the eruption.

"I learned before leaving that the third of a row of mountains peaks of which about a mile from us had burst into flame, or had been torn away by the peak that became active. was the highest of a group of mountains, and that it had also been totally destroyed by the lava.

"When the eruption began it disappeared, and a great cloud of smoke, dust and ashes covered the mountains around.

"Soon after the volcano was seen the Port Morgan was caught by a great current and more at her course. The current in Codar Creek was very hard, and I am sure that the eruption of the Chiriqui Peak was the cause. When we got into the open sea great rocks were sticking out of the water in places where before we had navigated the vessel. Small islands could be seen all around the shore.

"I cannot say how high the flames burst from the mountain. It seemed to me that flames were bursting from the side."

Captain Olavik is well known to the gulf and Caribbean ports, having sailed in these waters many years.
